DevSecCon is back in Singapore, to bring together DevOps and Security in a unique conference run by practitioners, for practitioners.

This year we're expanding DevSecCon over two days to be able to offer more in-depth sessions: inspiring talks and interactive workshops about DevSecOps – the practice of building security into development processes. This is your chance to learn from key industry figures, meet with your peers and learn how DevOps and Security can work together to make continuously secure development a reality.

Security as code

Learn how to implement security in the overall development process – from the supply chain to the customer experience.
